5 GEORGE LESLIE VONTRESS,

6 Petitioner,

7 vs.

9 D.W. NEVENS, et al.,

12 This habeas matter under 28 U.S.C. § 2254 comes before the Court on its sua sponte inquiry into 13 whether the petition should be dismissed without prejudice as wholly unexhausted. This order follows 14 upon a prior show-cause order (#3) and petitioner's response thereto, which he presents as a motion (#5) 15 to show cause.

16 Background

17 The papers presented together with the online docket records of the state courts reflect the 18 following procedural history.¹

19 Petitioner George Vontress challenges his Nevada state conviction, pursuant to a jury verdict, 20 of robbery with a deadly weapon, burglary while in possession of a firearm, battery with the intent to 21 commit a crime (robbery), and battery with the use of a deadly weapon. Vontress represented himself 22 at trial.

23 The judgment of conviction was filed on June 15, 2012, and the time for filing a direct appeal 24

25 ¹The Court may take judicial notice of matters of public record, including documents on file in 26 federal or state courts. E.g., Harris v. County of Orange, 682 F.3d 1126, 1131-32 (9th Cir. 2012). The online docket records of the state district court and Supreme Court of Nevada may be accessed from:

1 expired on July 16, 2012. Petitioner filed, inter alia, an appeal on November 1, 2012. The state 2 supreme court ultimately held, following appointment of counsel, that the appeal was untimely and 3 dismissed for lack of jurisdiction. The court dismissed the appeal in a March 13, 2014, order in No.
4 62057 in that court, and the remittitur issued on May 19, 2014.

5 Meanwhile, petitioner filed a motion to vacate judgment in the state district court on February 6 1, 2013. It does not appear that the motion has been adjudicated by the state district court as yet, with 7 the court previously having taken all pending matters off calendar during the pendency of the untimely 8 appeal.

9 Petitioner also filed a state post-conviction petition on March 27, 2013. The state district court
10 denied the petition. The state court clerk gave notice of entry of the court's findings of fact, conclusions 11 of law, and order on August 4, 2014.

12 On or about August 12, 2014, petitioner mailed the federal petition in this action to the Clerk.
13 The petition was filed on August 18, 2014, and entered on August 19, 2014.

14 When this Court screened the petition, the state district court online docket did not reflect that 15 petitioner had appealed the denial of his state petition. Petitioner confirmed in his responses to the 16 exhaustion inquiries in the federal petition that he had not. He stated that he had not appealed the 17 dismissal because "[t]he Nevada Supreme Court is part of the conspiracy and in collusion with state 18 officials."²

19 By an order filed and entered on August 20, 2014, the day after the petition was entered on the 20 docket, the Court directed petitioner to show cause why the petition should not be dismissed as 21 completely unexhausted. The Court expressly cautioned petitioner regarding the potential consequences
22 of not filing a timely appeal to the Supreme Court of Nevada from the denial of state post-conviction
23 relief. The Court stated:

24 Petitioner at all times remains responsible for timely presenting 25 a federal petition with exhausted claims. If petitioner has failed to 26 exhaust any claims, then his petition will be dismissed for lack of 27 exhaustion. If he later exhausts claims but does so only after the federal 28 limitation period has expired, the later federal petition then will be ²E.g., #1-1, at 4 (CM/ECF page 6).

1 dismissed with prejudice as untimely. The Court can assure petitioner 2 that the chances of his bypassing the exhaustion requirement on an 3 allegation that "[t]he Nevada Supreme Court is part of the conspiracy 4 and in collusion with state officials" are virtually nil. If petitioner allows 5 the currently running appeal time to expire in the state courts, petitioner 6 virtually certainly will have created a situation where: (a) he cannot 7 pursue federal habeas relief because he has no exhausted claims; (b) any 8 efforts to exhaust later will be met by state procedural bars; and (c) a 9 later federal petition filed after exhaustion may be dismissed as untimely.

10 In short, petitioner is about to make a very, very large procedural 11 mistake that will bar his claims from being reviewed further in either 12 state or federal court.

13 It, again, is petitioner's responsibility to timely seek federal 14 habeas relief with exhausted claims. Nothing in the Court's orders herein 15 toll the running of the federal limitation period, which continues to run 16 as to a later federal petition. Duncan v. Walker, 533 U.S. 167 (2001).
 17 If petitioner proceeds down the track he is attempting to pursue, the 18 virtually certain consequence – that his claims thereafter will become 19 barred from further state or federal review – will be a consequence of his 20 own making.

21 #3, at 2 n.2.

22 The online docket of the state district court reflects that petitioner did not file an appeal from 23 the denial of state post-conviction relief. Nothing has been filed in the state district court since the 24 August 4, 2014, notice of findings, conclusions and order by that court.

25 The only other proceeding that petitioner has pursued through to the Supreme Court of Nevada
 26 regarding the current criminal case is in No. 60674. In that proceeding, Vontress filed an original 27 petition for extraordinary relief on April 17, 2012 – prior to his conviction – seeking an order staying 28 the state district court proceedings pending the state supreme court's disposition of a then yet-to-be-filed petition. The state supreme court declined to exercise original jurisdiction in the matter expressly
 "without deciding upon the merits of any claims raised therein."

29 Governing Law

30 The Court may raise issues of exhaustion sua sponte. See, e.g., Aiken v. Spalding, 841 F.2d 881, 31 883 (9th Cir. 1988). Under 28 U.S.C. § 2254(b)(1)(A), a habeas petitioner first must exhaust his state
 32 court remedies on a claim before presenting that claim to the federal courts. To satisfy this exhaustion 33 requirement, the claim must have been fairly presented to the state courts completely through to the 34 highest court available, in this case the Supreme Court of Nevada. E.g., Peterson v. Lampert, 319 F.3d

1 1153, 1156 (9th Cir. 2003)(en banc); Vang v. Nevada, 329 F.3d 1069, 1075 (9th Cir. 2003). In the state 2 courts, the petitioner must refer to the specific federal constitutional guarantee and must also state the 3 facts that entitle the petitioner to relief on the federal constitutional claim. E.g., Shumway v. Payne, 223
 4 F.3d 983, 987 (9th Cir. 2000). That is, fair presentation requires that the petitioner present the state
 5 courts with both the operative facts and the federal legal theory upon which his claim is based. E.g., 6 Castillo v. McFadden, 399 F.3d 993, 999 (9th Cir. 2005). The exhaustion requirement insures that the 7 state courts, as a matter of federal-state comity, will have the first opportunity to pass upon and correct
 8 alleged violations of federal constitutional guarantees. See, e.g., Coleman v. Thompson, 501 U.S. 722, 9 731(1991).

10 A petition that is completely unexhausted is subject to immediate dismissal. See, e.g., Rasberry 11 v. Garcia, 448 F.3d 1150, 1154 (9th Cir. 2006); Jiminez v. Rice, 276 F.3d 478, 481 (9th Cir.2001).

12 Discussion

13 As stated in the show-cause order, it is clear beyond peradventure that the federal petition is 14 wholly unexhausted.

15 No claims were exhausted on petitioner's untimely direct appeal. Presenting a claim in a 16 procedural context in which the merits of the claim will not be considered, or will be considered only 17 in special circumstances, does not constitute fair presentation of the claim. Castille v. Peoples, 489 U.S.
 18 346, 351(1989). Clearly, the merits of a claim will not be considered on an untimely appeal over which 19 the state supreme court has no jurisdiction.

20 Nor were any claims exhausted on petitioner's pre-conviction original petition for extraordinary 21 relief. It is long-established law that a claim is not fairly presented and is not exhausted when a 22 petitioner fails to present the claim in state district court under state post-conviction procedures and 23 instead presents the claim in an original petition to the state's high court seeking to invoke an 24 extraordinary discretionary jurisdiction. See, e.g., Ex parte Hawk, 321 U.S. 114, 116 (1944); Sweet v.
 25 Cupp, 640 F.2d 233, 238 (9th Cir. 1981); see also Roettgen v. Copeland, 33 F.3d 36, 38 (9th Cir.
 26 1994)(applying Castille v. Peoples to the filing of an original writ in a state high court); accord 27 Lindquist v. Gardner, 770 F.2d 876 (9th Cir. 1985). The state supreme court's order declining to 28 exercise original jurisdiction over the writ petition did so with an explicitly clear statement that the

1 Court did not decide the merits of any claim therein.

2 Petitioner accordingly has not fairly presented any of the claims in the federal petition – even 3 if arguendo raised in the above proceedings – through to the Supreme Court of Nevada in a procedural 4 context in which the merits of the claim would be considered by the state high court absent special 5 circumstances.

6 Petitioner does not contend otherwise, i.e., that he in fact has presented the claims in the federal 7 petition to the Supreme Court of Nevada in a proceeding where the merits were considered or would 8 be considered absent special circumstances.

9 Petitioner urges instead, first, that he was subjected to a malicious prosecution in bad faith.
10 Petitioner’s allegation does not provide a basis for avoiding the exhaustion requirement. Petitioner must 11 fairly present his constitutional claims to the Supreme Court of Nevada in the first instance. That court 12 must be afforded the first opportunity to pass upon and correct alleged violations of federal 13 constitutional guarantees. Coleman, supra. Petitioner has not done so. None of the authorities cited 14 by petitioner are apposite to this case. This case does not present exceptional circumstances of peculiar 15 urgency as would establish a basis for avoiding the exhaustion requirement. An allegation by a 16 convicted inmate that he was subjected to a malicious prosecution in bad faith does not present such 17 exceptional circumstances.

18 Petitioner urges, second, that the exhaustion requirement should be excused because he is a 19 layman untrained in the law and he allegedly has “made every possible effort under the circumstances 20 to exhaust all relevant issues.” The exhaustion requirement applies fully to pro se petitioners. Nor has 21 petitioner made every possible effort under the circumstances to exhaust all relevant issues. He instead 22 has deliberately bypassed a state post-conviction appeal where he could have presented his 23 constitutional claims. He did so after being expressly cautioned by this Court that: (a) the chances of 24 his bypassing the exhaustion requirement on an allegation that “[t]he Nevada Supreme Court is part of 25 the conspiracy and in collusion with state officials” were virtually nil; and (b) if he let the state post-26 conviction appeal time expire the virtually certain consequence would be that he ultimately would be 27 precluded from being able to successfully seek state and federal relief because of applicable procedural 28 bars.

1 Petitioner urges, third, that there is an absence of available state corrective process under 28
2 U.S.C. § 2254(b)(1)(B)(i). The fact that the state courts denied relief on petitioner's multiple proper 3 person filings during the original criminal proceedings does not establish an absence of corrective 4 process. Nor does the state supreme court's dismissal of an untimely direct appeal demonstrate an 5 absence of corrective process. With regard to the state post-conviction proceedings, there was no 6 absence of corrective process, merely a failure by petitioner to utilize that process by filing an appeal
7 from the denial of relief by the state district court. Petitioner must exhaust his claims prior to seeking 8 federal relief, whether by a second state petition and timely appeal therefrom or some other state court 9 proceeding.

10 The completely unexhausted petition therefore will be dismissed without prejudice. The Court 11 repeats its prior admonitions herein that petitioner at all times remains responsible for timely presenting 12 exhausted claims. Neither the pendency of this case nor any action taken herein has stopped the running 13 of the federal limitation period.

14 IT THEREFORE IS ORDERED that petitioner's motion (#5) to show cause is DENIED and 15 that this action shall be DISMISSED without prejudice for lack of exhaustion.

16 IT FURTHER IS ORDERED that a certificate of appealability is DENIED. Jurists of 17 reason would not find the district court's dismissal of the wholly unexhausted petition without prejudice
18 to be debatable or wrong. As discussed herein, petitioner allowed the state post-conviction appeal time 19 to expire during the pendency of this action and instead has pursued this action despite being clearly 20 cautioned, inter alia, that this action was subject to dismissal.

21 The Clerk of Court shall enter final judgment accordingly, dismissing this action without 22 prejudice for lack of exhaustion.

23 DATED this 17th day of September, 2014.
